Gregg's Place (part two corrections)

Apparently, the information about Lloyd Johnson and Anna was incorrect in the article Gregg's Place, part two. It was pointed out that Anna was Lloyd's sister, not his wife. Furthermore, their name was Johnston, not Johnson. Anna was married to Charles Dauwalter. The business was sold to Grace Brown and business continued at the 208 Broadway address until the late 40's or early 50's before relocating further north up the street. If there are any other errors, please step forward, and thanks to the individual who called with this corrected information.

Gregg's Garage - Part Three

Our newest or latest challenge with this feature on the Mobil Station has been attempting to locate an older photo of the Mobil Gas Station. At the beginning of creating this piece, no photo had been located. We will see by the completion of the article if we succeeded or not in locating this apparent intangible object.

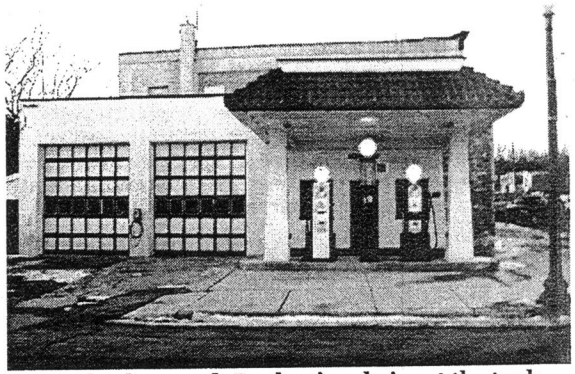

The Phillips 66 station owned by MN Valley Oil Company changed ownership in 1945. There are two entities to the business owned jointly, but run separately. Joe and Jim Pauly were brothers who owned Mobil stations in other parts of the county. Jim owned a Mobil in Norwood and Joe owned the station in Chaska. Jim sold the Norwood station to operate the Mobil in Carver. Joe owned the petroleum bulk plant portion of the business retaining the name of MN Valley Oil Company.

First we will talk about the bulk plant portion of the business. The bulk plant always supplied the gas to the gas station in the downtown area, as well as other stations. Our interest however, we will restrain ourselves to Carver for the purpose of simplicity. To clarify further, it probably would also be a good idea to explain geographics. The office for MN Valley Oil Company was located next door to the gas station while the bulk plant was over by the railroad tracks close to the present station referenced as the vacated portion of Lime Street, south side of County Road #40. The bulk plant stayed in the Pauly family until approximately 2001. Again though, getting ahead too far. While Jim Pauly ran the Mobil, in 1957 their partnership of joint ownership was terminated. In 1962, the MN Valley Oil Company was sold to Joe Pauly's children. Milfred and Arlan, along with their sisters, Laverne and Delores became joint owners in the bulk plant, and incorporating the company. The siblings had joint ownership until 1982 when Arlan and his wife, Phyllis took over the operations after much haggling and finally reaching strained congenial settlement. Arlan and Phyllis continued supplying fuel to the Mobil Station on the corner of Broadway until its closure, approximately in August of 1990.

Arlan and Phyllis semi retired in about 1999 while their son, Richard, was following in dad's footsteps in the Mobil business. Rich spent approximately three years to see his dream unfolding with the opening of the Carver Depot on the bend by Fourth and Lime Streets. In October of 1997 the Carver Depot, supplied with Mobil gasoline, began operation. Rich sold the Carver Depot in 2003. While the MN Valley Oil Company sold the fuel portion of the bulk plant to the Co-op in about 2001 and then, about a year later, sold the remaining oil bulk portion of MN Valley Oil Company ending the Pauly family dynasty with Mobil in Carver MN.

Now we concentrate on the events of the first/second entity of the joint partnership that began the Pauly dynasty in 1945 at the corner of Broadway and Main Streets between two brothers and an integral part of 'Our Carver' history, carried through for almost six decades.

James Pauly began operating the Carver Mobil at the corner of Broadway and Main streets in 1945. Flossy, his bride and Jim resided in the upstairs apartment of the 208 Broadway address above the grocery store, later to be known as the Carver Café. This is the period in time where one hears the tales about the infamous window between the service bay and the Café that food was passed through to the workers in the station.

Let's remember as well that the scenario for the station did not quite play out the same way as its counterpart. Some of us may remember these days and some were not as fortunate to be a part of this grand history in time. So grab your soda, fill your tub of popcorn, sit down, kick back and enjoy the jour-ney back in time. When you would pull up to those gas tanks, the serviceman would come out wiping his hands on a grease rag after working on your neighbor's car to give full-service to your car.
"Fill 'er up there Delmore?"
"No. just two bucks today Jim."
"Check the oil?"
"No, no time today"
"Well we can certainly wash that windshield for you while we pump," as the bell chimes in the background. By the time he's got the tank filled, the windshield if half done. He finishes up, they chat a moment and on their way. Meanwhile, another customer may have pulled up or he'll have just enough time to go back inside to barely get back to finding the problem with the Chevy in the bay when the bell rings again and another customer has pulled up for fuel. Oh those were the days, huh? Some will remember all too well and others just barely. But many of you reading this will recall all too well those days. You won't find that kind of service anywhere like that these days. You didn't get out of the car unless you needed to stretch or wanted to be eye level when you talked. They pumped your gas, checked your oil, sometimes checked the battery, radiator, and even put air in your tires, not to mention clean our windshields. If you asked, they'd even clean the back window. Oh those were the days, eh?

Jim Pauly operated that station for twelve years before moving onto bigger and better things for him and his family. In 1957, he and his eldest brother Joe parted, terminating their partnership. Joe took over the ownership of the building. Jim sold the business to Dick Lenzen. Now there is an era to remember. The stories, if only we had the room to tell everyone all the tales of the old timers in town and all the goings-on that were discussed in this little part of the world. Dick operated the Mobil until 1967. Some of us remember the soda machine that was always at the station too. Glass bottles, not cans, mind you. You daresn't break that bottle either. Remember Mellvern Schultz? Well he tried his hand at this business too. He sure did. He ran that Mobil from the fall of 1967 until January of 1969. Again, this was not an easy, sit down and watch others pump their own gas operation . Oh no, these guys not only changed oil, changed tires, repaired vehicles, they did the whole full-service thing for their customers who pulled up to that pump. None of this stand behind the counter and tell you that you have just invested in the oil company for what we have to pay now. Back then, you paid less and got more. Unlike today, pay more, receive less. You wash your own windows, check your own oil, put your own air in your tires. Who are we kid-ding huh? Little do some know. (Some don't believe these stories either.) They worked hard and got their daily exercise on top of it. Then in 1969 Jim and Joan Rein got into the filling station business. They worked side by side. Not that the others didn't. But this particular person remembers Joan pumping gas in coveralls, grease smeared down one cheek, her bangs flopped down over her eyebrow and proud to be able to do the work. Sometimes she would stop in all decked out and in a dress collecting money. She probably pumped the gas too, just don't recall now. We laughed about the memories we shared. This was about teenage years for this author just becoming familiar with Carver and the young generation growing up in Carver. Ufda! Parents were certainly kept busy, but they could always count on businessmen to help keep their eyes on the youngsters. Are some of you reliving those memories about now? Even if you weren't from Carver. There was always a hangout in some town, some gathering place, some particular place that jumps out at you in your youth. That was the place to be. Then in 1969, Carl Ernst from East Union stepped in to try his hand at the Mobil Station. His kids were always around to help him out too. Then oh boy, remember these days' guys? Jim Hron and Skip Swanson were the businessmen of the Mobil! That was in 1981. We won't even go down that street will we Jim...?

It was in 1982 that the Pauly holdings ceased on this property after almost four decades. The Pauly family sold the building to Loren and Deb Lenzen in, I believe she said, September. Those were the days when Loren built quite a reputation for himself as a good mechanic. He was in the business for almost two decades. It was in the late eighties and gas sales were not like the olden days. Loren had to make a major decision. He chose to stop selling gasoline. He wasn't given much choice with all the new environmental regulations and the costs involved. In 1990 Loren went solely to repairing vehicles. It was when he stopped repairing vehicles that he was really sorely missed and probably really appreciated. Repair of vehicles seemed to go hand in hand with filling stations back in the days, not like present day. You won't find many stations that do both. They are few and far between. Regardless, in the little town of Carver when Loren closed both gas pumping and the station, it was the close of an era. An era deserving of remembrance.

And I hope that I have done justice to each and every one who ever owned, operated, worked in, and patronized this fine establishment on the corner of Broadway and Main Streets named the Mobil Station. This establishment has made a permanent mark in many residents' minds of Carver. Hopefully, its existence has now been preserved in time, as well.

The final chapter of the Mobil Station now lies in the hands of Gregg and Meg Witt who have purchased this piece of property (2005) holding so much history and memories for so many of us. It is not just a piece of land. It's a symbol, it's a time in history, it's a memory. Above all, it is a piece of history. Gregg has succeeded in creating the exact ambiance that was felt fifty years ago, probably longer. This was what really struck me the first time I drove by the memorial with the Mobil gas pumps lit up against the white building in the red trim How the memories flooded back of good times, the 50's music, the 57' Chevy's, the Corvettes, the Buicks, the white t-shirts, saddle shoes, etc, etc. It was as though, at any moment, you expected to look over and see Jim, or Dick, or Mel to come out that door wiping their hands on the way to pump the gas, lift the hood and check the oil, only they aren't there any more, but the venue is in place for it.

Good Job Gregg. That was what really inspired the story behind the station. You turned on the light and the story had to be told.

I hope you all enjoyed our trip down memory lane. I sure did. Congratulations to each and every one of you who made it all happen. Without all of you, there wouldn't have been anything to tell anyone.

The End.

Carver Village Market

The Carver's Women's Business Group requested the use of the Gazebo Park. The council was told that the women's group would like to rent the Gazebo Park to host an "Open Air Market". The purpose of the event would be to keep the downtown active and vital. The Park and Recreation Board were not in favor of the event due to concerns of similar activities in or on the ball field locations. Suggestion was submitted to amend the ordinance allowing activities as described only in the downtown district parks. The city attorney would be required to research this issue. Motion was made and carried favoring the 'Open Air Market' in the downtown parks if the attorney can draft wording preventing these types of events from occurring in other parks. Park rental fees would be worked out later.

Carver Car Cruise

An individual spoke with the council about a Carver Car Cruise event. The event involves classic car owners traveling from town to town to show off and display their cars. The council was told that Carver must present itself as an event location to draw people to town because there are not enough businesses to continue to keep drawing people into town. Reserved parking on Broadway and one block on 3rd Street West was requested for classic cars touring to park on the second Wednesday of each month for June, July and August from 6 to 9 PM. Signs could be put up signifying 'restricted' parking. Bar owner participation was talked about. Motion was made and carried directing the staff to look into this type of plan in light of council favoring such a promotional type of event.

River Bluff Estates

The council requested an update on the pond grading at the River Bluff Estates proposed development. The developer's engineer submitted Record Plans to the city's engineering firm for review. Completion date for this project was questioned. A family death for personnel had slowed progress. Question was asked if the developer was of the opinion that the project was completed. However, the engineers pointed out incomplete items. The mayor stated that if the pond was ninety five percent complete, possibly issuance of permits to build should be allowed. Statement was made that this project has been drawn out for four years. Comment was also made that the small amount of work remaining should be completed prior to issuing permits. Motion was submitted to draft letter to start the process utilizing the letter of credit for completion of the project, but no action was taken at this time.

Carver Quilt and Craft Club

On April 7th (Saturday) and May 12th (Saturday) from 10 AM to 4 PM in the lower level of the Village Hall there's a party going on. Come and check it out. What's the party about you ask? Call Linda Schutz at 612) 987-5454 for more details.

Alternate Urban Area Review

The city planner announced to the council that the final Alternate Urban Area Reviews were distributed in January and under MN Rules, the responding agencies had until February 9th to object to the final Alternate Urban Area Review and mitigation plan. Only one minor comment had been received from the Metropolitan Council, which was proposed to be included in the final southwest Carver Alternate Urban Area Review. Motions were made and carried with all ayes approving resolution adopting the final Alternate Urban Area Wide Reviews and mitigation plans for the northwest and southwest Carver areas. The representative from Tolleffson development praised the city for the work done on the Alternate Urban Area Reviews.

Metropolitan Council Environmental Services

The city engineer prepared a list for the council to review for possible projects that could be done at the same time as the Metropolitan Council Environmental Services Interceptor Project. The council needed to prioritize projects so that a feasibility study could be done. Any items that were not to be included in the feasibility study should be relayed to the administrator. The plan would then come before the council for authorization to conduct the feasibility study.

Questions regarding projects were discussed further. Bonding of various projects was inquired about. More information was necessary to determine the type of bonding. Bridges along the route were being checked where the interceptor would be constructed. Assessments to property owners were discussed. Cost of the feasibility study was inquired about. Recommendation was submitted to closely weigh and review items to be included on this priority list and allow the administrator to compile the gathered information. A summary of the top listed items would be reviewed again prior to feasibility study determination.

Ridgeview Medical Center

The council held a Public Hearing on the proposal for the revenue note for the Ridgeview Medical Center. Representatives summarized the proposal requested. The city wouldn't be taking any risks issuing bonds for the medical center. Motion was made and carried with all ayes approving adoption of the resolution approving the issuance and sale of the healthcare facilities revenue note and authorizing the execution of documents relating to the project.

Septic Tank Removal Policy

The attorney discussed with the council the request for a policy for handling septic tank removal on private property. They discussed removal of tanks. The municipal utilities director explained that these tanks are cracked open and filled with sand whereupon the council considered this process maintenance. The present ordinance was acceptable as is.

- NEVER PASS UP AN OPPORTUNITY..... -

Land Use Matters

The city planner explained the ordinance establishing fees related to land use matters. The financial consultant representative discussed funds with the council and how the program should be handled. The utility rate study was also reviewed with the council. A projected decrease was questioned regarding the Water Connection Fund. This was related to the 2012 proposed water treatment plant construction.

Further discussion involved parking ticket costs, industrial connection charges and a portion of an ordinance requiring reviewal. The original ordinance was not designed for larger parcels. The current ordinance was reviewed.

Motion was made and carried with all ayes adopting the ordinance establishing certain fees relating to land use matters. The council discussed charges relating to municipal utilities fees and storm water fees. This issue requires a closer look for future charges Motion was made and carried with all ayes adopting the ordinance amending the chapter relating to fees. The staff was authorized to publish summarized ordinances by motion.

City Engineer

The engineering firm has a new logo. The engineer also informed the council that a report would be forthcoming from negotiations with a prospective commercial developer requiring soil borings.

The council discussed the prioritized list requested for feasibility report. The council was unable to return the lists in time for summarization. Suggestion was made to schedule a special meeting to review the projects. A walking tour was suggested for projects proposed. There were questions about some of the listed projects. One example was the Gate Well/Storm Lift Station, which is the drainage pipe on the levee requiring a flood gate. Several other items were discussed for clarification. A special meeting was scheduled by motion for April 10th.

Liquor Licenses

The city attorney reviewed the proposed amendment to the Liquor Licenses ordinance. The proposed change would include providing evidence of one year's prepaid premium for liquor liability insurance in the event that two notices have been received of cancellation during the prior year term. The attorney also took the liberty to make technical corrections of suspension and revocation sections of license provisions. Suggestion was also made to forward a copy of the amended ordinance to related businesses. Motion was made and carried with all ayes adopting the amended ordinance relating to proof of financial responsibility for licenses for the sale of intoxicating and non-intoxicating malt liquor/beer.

Metropolitan Area Sales Tax Proposal

The council briefly discussed the topic of an increase in sales tax for the metro transportation and transit district. There was opposition to support tax increase without more information. The administrator would obtain more information for further discussion.

The council discussed the resolution requesting comprehensive road and transit funding in 2007. Question was asked if Southwest Transit would receive some of the tax money. The attorney stated that they would. Council member commented disfavoring the proposal because of it being a permanent increase and a funding package had just been passed. The resolution could be modified. It was the opinion of some that this was not the way to address transportation Roads and transportation require updating. However, the city streets are the city's responsibility, it was unlikely that the this 'new' funding would come to the city for roads and the city had a responsibility to the city. The motion to adopt the resolution to request comprehensive road and transit funding for 2007 failed with three nays and two ayes.

Miscellaneous

Two citizens have approached the Heritage Preservation Commission regarding their properties and refurbishing historically. There were discussions about the Rehabilitation Loan Funds and the administrator would contact the attorney regarding revamping the program.

The city hall task force had met and are checking further on sites for the city hall with discussion of keeping the city hall in the downtown area. Parking was a major issue. Suggestion was submitted that the Downtown Task Force have a joint meeting with the City Hall Task Force.

The Downtown Task Force discussed defining issues involving the certification of the levee. The city engineer had pointed out that the DNR has done some modeling of the Minnesota River and may be presenting a new flood plain map. The force will also be checking marketing opportunities.
